

The map displays the United States with various regions color-coded according to aviation categories. The legend in the bottom right corner defines the categories:

- VFR (Visual Flight Rules): Represented by green.
- MVFR (Marginal Visual Flight Rules): Represented by blue.
- IFR (Instrument Flight Rules): Represented by red.
- LIFR (Low Instrument Flight Rules): Represented by pink.

The map shows a large green area covering most of the United States, indicating VFR conditions. There are several blue areas, primarily in the western and central regions, indicating MVFR conditions. A few small red areas are visible, particularly in the southern and eastern regions, indicating IFR conditions. No pink areas are visible on the map, indicating no LIFR conditions.
